Products

Today's black, tomorrow's colorfulness

Potential and existing products

Certain products (handmade) have to be produced in 1000 locations, under one flag – our flag. They must be organic and of best quality, examined and certified in the same package with the same name/label. Is that possible?

Yes! Well organized and nicely packaged.

Possibilities are endless with respect to all of specifics and differences equally on all levels.

Invest in future, invest in campaign of spreading ideas and knowledge and tested projects.

Let's invest in mini experimental laboratories and research centers, in young researchers, development of new materials and products and healthy technologies.

Invest in biotechnology, organic production and handmade products. We'll start small. Learn everything about them. See what we have at our disposal. Because logistics is very important. We have a lot but don't know it. Perhaps it's somewhere on the attic or maybe it's collapsed and needs rebuilding it.

And what's healthy can't make it on its own! It needs help.

What about our old ancestor's recipes? Where are they? Both smells and flavors!?

We are all a little sick in this day and age. We are used to or getting used to overall changes.

Some are good and others..

It looks like we need to start it up. Because our health can't wait. Enough stories to be continued in the next issue.

From one person to one million people.

Magic or not?

Secret of YooY tree – Wake up

With combined knowledge and agility we will sow new, healthy seeds and with our combined effort we'll bring back smells and tastes!

This story is very simple. Although somebody wants to tell it in a different way. Complexed. With stalling it out. Tied and wrapped up. Perhaps to hide its mistakes or mistakes of others. Or maybe package it and then sell it to us.

Anyway it's important to know that nature gave us everything. We just didn't want to see it. In return she only asked for respect. We couldn't even appreciate that. Let alone cooperate with her. We wanted to show our strength and power. Now it's all coming back to us! We should smarten up.

How it works

We have built an intimate and specific type of business, which in a clear and completely understandable way with a risk that is reduced by many procedures, for financing and investing of your capital into something that is very beautiful, useful, profitable; In many locations and destinations where we are present and contribute with our presence in administration, consulting, marketing we contribute to the very success and speed of invested projects. The main branch of investment is traditional biotechnology one of the most profitable branches of the economy. The whole concept is adapted to everyone with an open mind; small firms, companies who have evolved but can't financially support their started project, to all individual innovators who need our logistics and experience in creating new products. In our mission for faster, better and more efficient way of achieving the Yooy organization's goal, the organization has launched the Complex Cell organization for investment in synergy with its ideas and ideas of innovative entrepreneurs. By the understanding of all of us that the lack of clean air, water and food is a huge problem that cannot be easily solved because of a large deficit, we decided to achieve quick revitalization and recovery in a simple but modern way, using innovative solutions and techniques. Therefore, the method of investing was designed in synergy with our members on the ground, realistic needs and moves implement the necessary capital for serious competitive and efficient production must be implemented through investment and larger investments; so that raw materials don't remain raw materials, so that the processing industry brings profit and that innovative products bring profit. Realizing that in today's time big and fast climate changes are waiting for us we decided to react to a million places. For that action is needed: joining of knowledge, entrepreneurship and capital.

Next level with ComplexCell

This platform is arranged in a way and with a goal to enable trust in our business with a possibility of good profit and possibility of further investment and development. So that small things can lead to the big things. So that small specialized and synchronized teams can be a nursery of knowledge in a lot of activities and so that we can, on a sustainable and very profitable way, come to much needed energy for quick action to restore health of all of us and our planet. The D2C strategy is a business model which will through our system of action, in many ways, help create mutual trust and trust between us and our buyers as well as rapid penetration of our marketing. This sector's intention is that active members of our association go over to this high level and invest in themselves and what they are already doing. Constant practical work and mini experimental laboratory, constant communication will bring to good practical cognition and many ideas. Complex cell has a clear vision and an already paved way to open and "hungry" market for healthy organic products, through its own existing little cell. Due to the required quantities it has been decided that only through investment it can come to quick realizations. We offer different possibilities of investing; with constant tracking of the product development phase, design, branding and respecting good entrepreneurship and all principles of the business code.
